

Danny Gray

Managing Director

Government Guaranteed Loan Market

Having been in the securities industry since 1983, I believe it takes establishing personal relationships, finding solutions to customers' problems and providing the very best customer service in order to be successful.

I believe in building a relationship with my customers before trying to sell to them. My objective is more than just selling securities to my customers. It is to make a friend and fill that friend's investment needs. By providing outstanding customer service, both before and after the sale, I have separated myself from the competition.

Before my customers can reach their financial objectives, I believe they need a comprehensive plan. With that plan in place, I help my customers meet their objectives by helping them invest in high quality investment products.

“People do business with people they like and trust.” Each client I serve will receive my full attention and best effort.
